It is not impossible by any means that the Hon, JOHN HALL will be elected to Congress in the Third District of this State. Mr. HALL seems to have thrown himself with zeal into the canvass and he is backed up not only by the Republicans but by many who remember with gatitude his services after the war in opposition to proscriptive legislation. It is to the credit of Mr. HALL that he stood by the Union cause during the war, but that after the war was over he dared to follow his convictions as to what was due to the changed situation of affairs. In this boldness and liberality he showed himself a statesman. Such a man should be in demand among the people in opposition to a timid, hesitating, bartering individual like HEREFORD, who drew money from the United States Treasury that he felt afraid to keep and yet used it as a bribe to secure his re-election for another term in Congress.

The Convention To-morrow.

Those who feel an interest in the suc cess of the opposition to the Bourbon Democracy in the Congressional canvass now upon us are reminded that the convention to send delegates to the District Convention is called to meet at the Court House to-morrow forenoon at 10 o'clock. We hope that every township in the county will be properly represented, and that the convention itself, in character and numbers, will be an earnest of success in the important campaign before us. The call invites not only Republicans but all who are willing to co-operate in the good work. Two years ago the Republicans and Liberal Democrats cooperated in this county and Congressional District, and achieved a glorious victory. They can do the same thing this year is they again act in unison.

WE should have stated some days ago that the Rev. JAMES A. LATANE, formerly pastor of St. Matthew's Church here, has been canonically deposed as a minister in the Episcopal Church by Bishop Jouns he not having returned to the fold within the six months allowed by the regulations of the church. Mr. LATANE took the step with which his name is now so widely known after great deliberation, and it was not expected by those who knew of the man that he would recant. We suppose that he will now find his way into the Reformed Episcopal Church, or else ally himself with some other denom else ally himself with some other denom-ination. We presume that it can be said for him that he wrote the most finished utmost bounds of the world? So anti-High Church paper that has recently appeared in the controversy between the two wings of the Episcopal Church. So if there is joy in heaven they again the proposed. neaven over every sinner that rep surely the Camp Meeting has not been held for nought.

A FIGHT OCCURRED

on the outskirts of the camp last night, but it was promptly quelled by the police.
The 10:80 service opened with prayer by Rev. H. C. Sanford, Rev. J. A. Kibble preached from the text

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST."

Jesus opponents tried to inveigle him in his talk in three ways. First the politi-cians questioned him when he gave the memorable answer: "Render unto Ceazar, &c." Next the scientists approached him, who questioned him concerning the woman who had seven husbands. Lastly came the theologians who saked the question which is the greatest commandment, &c. Christ promptly answered all their questions. He then asked them the question "What think ye of Christ."

OUR VIEWS OF CHRIST will much effect our human destiny. Our views of him will change much as our knowledge of him increases. The Uni-tarians deny the divinity of Christ. Our conversion changes our view of him, and our views of him change our opinion of what duty is. Our knowledge of Christ will dispel all our doubts. Christ is not a myth. He lived on earth a little more that eighteen hundred years ago. He walked the hills and plains of Judea. Some say he was but a man. But this is so preposterous that it needs no argument to refute it. He was more than a man at the grave of Lazarus. He was more than a man at the grave of Lazarus. He was more than a man when he calmed the stormy sea, &c., &c. Some say he was an angel of the highest order. But he proclaimed his own divinity and allowed himself to be worshipped. worshipped.

HE IS THE FULLNESS OF THE GODHEAD

BODILY. Christ is one; we cannot divide him; he is one symmetrical whole. He is sin-less, pure and holy. He changes man mentally and morally. He is changing the world to-day—all the systems of theology; all the great schemes for the salva ion of the world come from the church tion of the world come from the church. And the church gets all its power from Jesus. Religiously our land is in a transition state—everything is bolling in America. The people of all nations are gathering here to enjoy one great feast of liberty. Oan we not see in this the great mission of our nation religiously? Will he world is growing worse. After the sermon a time was spent in singing and prayer.

The evening service was opened by singing "The sweet by and by." Prayer by Dr. Reliey, who preached from the

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR IN THE DAYS OF THY YOUTH, ETC.'

DAYS OF THY YOUTH, ETC."

The divinity that airs within us, points out eternity to man. It is a mistaken idea that while religion is suited to old age, it is not suited to the young. The book of Ecclesiastes is supposed to be a drama, carried on as a dialogue between a youthful libertine, and an old man. The youth urging that there is a time for all things and that life may be summed up in this "eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow you die." While the old man who has seen the follies of life advises a very different course of life, and finally sums up the whole matter and gives the advice found in the language of the text. To remember our creator is not merely to hold him in our memories, but we must also im in our memories, but we must also be willing to obey his commands. be willing to coey his commands. We suppose that every young person in the congregation expects to be religious. Youth is the best time to seek religion, even old age should be favorable to seek-ing it. The young have less to repent of than the old have. The longer they live in sin, the harder it will be to get reconciled to curselves, and if we do repent, that repentance will be most bitter.

RELIGION IS A SAFEGUARD. If the young have it they will shun bad ompany and all the other cylls that beset company and all the other evils that beset them.

Religion is necessary to the highest degree of usefulness. No man can be as useful after spending the best of his life in crime, even if he does then repent, as he could have been had he given his heart to God while young. If we want active men in the church, in the pulpit, we must look to the young for them. If we want missionaries, we must look to our Sunday.

Schools.

Religion is necessary to our happiness, both in this world and in the world to come. If religion did not go beyond this world we should take it for the good it world we should take it for the good it does us here. It is just what we want in prosperity, it buoys us up in adversity, it is what we want in afflictions, and above all, it is what we want in death.

PROBABILITES ARE AGAINST A SINFUL OLD AGE.

The great cable that holds the vessel is The great cable that holds the vessel is composed of little threads that an infant might break. Our habits are these little threads, and they will multiply until they will form a net that will bind us hand and foot. The spirit of God may be grieved away in this life. God has said: "My spirit shall not always strive with man." We may shut our eyes sgainst the spirit, even when it does shine. But we must close our report.

This is the third sermon that the Doctor has preached during the meeting, and tor has preached during the meeting, and always to large audiences. This one is ully equeal to the others. Some of the used in his illustration grand, and they must be seen and heard to be rightly appreciated.
